Book discussion formats:

Keynote:

- A 30min talk about the book, the stories, and why it all matters on the journey to heal from trauma, cultivating a healthy sense of self living and emotionally healthy life that allows Black men and boys to thrive.
- 30min talks are followed by an audience Q and A when possible, based on the host organizations agenda

Moderated panel discussion

(This is Romal's preferred presentation format. It allows for a healing time of Q and A. Interaction with attendees through question-and-answer time leads to a valuable dialogue about mental health and the emotional needs of Black men and boys)

- In this format a moderator is identified by the host organization, preferably someone who has read the book in advance. Romal along with 1-2 additional panelists field questions from the moderator for 45min.
- Following the moderated conversation, the floor is open for 15-20 minutes of questions from the audience that answered by the panelist.
- Audience Q and A is followed by closing remarks from the moderator, Romal, and that other panelists.
- The book signing and photo opportunities take place at the close of the panel.

About panelists:

Romal typically works to have at least one person whose story is told in “I Wish My Dad” and Kyndra Frazier who wrote the takeaways for each chapter. It is also possible to have a local leader or young adult serve as a panelist to share how the book impacted him or her and the lessons learned. Details regarding moderator selection and potential panelist can be discussed by phone after we have received your inquiry and schedule a call with Romal.
